

G. O. P. SCHEME TO LEVY $10,000,000 TRIBUTE ANNUALLY ON SOUTH SEEN IN POTASH TARIFF

Reserve Board Attacked by John S. Williams

FORMER CURRENCY HEAD SAYS BOARD COGS PROSPERITY

Largely Responsible for Suffering and Delay in Return to Normal, He Tells Augusta Meet.

SPEAKS IN DEFENSE OF BANK OF ATLANTA

Officials of Local Institution Pleaded for Liberal Policies More Than Year Ago, He Says.

Augusta, Ga., July 11.—(Special.)—“For much unnecessary suffering and delay in the return of prosperity, now overdue in this country, the federal reserve board is largely responsible,” John Skelton Williams asserted in a speech at Augusta today before the Augusta Board of Commerce, the farmers of Georgia and Georgia Press association.

As comptroller of the currency Mr. Williams was a member of the board from its creation. He charged, distinctly and repeatedly, that the board by stubborn refusal to modify rules and policies to adapt them to changing conditions and to sectional and seasonal demands, has caused unnecessary hardship and obstruction of return to healthy conditions. He referred to correspondence between himself and the board to prove that he began more than eighteen months ago and continued until his retirement a single-handed fight against methods of administration which, he contended, not only hindered, but in many instances actually reversed the progress of the federal reserve system. He said: “Perhaps it is too late now to correct the very serious mistakes that have been made, as I think, or to avoid or cure the natural and inevitable consequences. It is not late to try to point out some of these mistakes, especially when there is opportunity to do so before the ruling powers of a powerful commonwealth.

“The federal reserve system is the finest tool for commercial protection and construction ever put in the hands of a government and people. I believe and say that by awkward and inefficient handling it has been used to injure where it was intended to guard and to encourage and protect what it should have restrained or prevented. I believe it has been weakened and misdirected by the ‘bureau disease,’ which I have described heretofore as ‘bureaucratic’ and which all who are entrusted with large authority seem to become subject.

“I question nobody’s motives. The dismal cold fact, as it seems to me, is that the federal reserve act, designed to provide a system of banking and currency adaptable to the variations of seasonal and sectional requirements and of supply and demand and commercial development, became by poor administration stiff and inflexible, consequently oppressive and injurious where it should have been helpful and dangerous to any civilized country on the globe.

“He cited the case of a ‘valiant little’ national bank in Alabama which needed $12,000 to help its farmer customers at crop moving time last September. Under the ‘progressive interest plan’ of the board this bank actually was charged at the rate of 8 1/2 per cent per annum for part of the money it got, or about 4 per cent per month, on an average for use of money for two weeks. After careful study of interest rates of other countries he found that the rates the records show were charged certain small national banks in Colorado, Kansas, Texas, Louisiana and other states by their reserve banks, in certain exceptional cases, were from two to five times as much as the rates charged by any government bank of any civilized country on the globe.

First Conference In Irish Parley Passes “Amiably”

FORD WOULD RUN U.S. NITRATE PLANT AT MUSCLE SHOALS

Detroit Manufacturer Makes Offer for the Uncompleted Wilson Dam Project in Alabama.

OFFER PROVES VALUE OF WAR-TIME PROJECT

Will Operate Plant for Making Fertilizer in Peace, and Explosives in War.

Washington, July 14.—Henry Ford has a $200,000,000 idea that the great uncompleted Muscle Shoals nitrate plant, started by the government during the war, is a good commercial venture. The Detroit auto king, it has just been officially disclosed, offers to take over, complete and operate the Muscle Shoals plant, on which the government already has expended $80,000,000. Congress, guided by Secretary of War Weeks, will decide whether Ford’s offer can be accepted. Secretary Hoover has transmitted to Secretary Weeks the Ford proposal, after prolonged discussions of the project.

The negotiations grew out of representations made to the department of commerce by the Tennessee Valley association, the Tennessee Valley association and the American Farm Bureau federation, all of whom are interested in seeing that the great Muscle Shoals plant should not disintegrate altogether and the improvement to transportation on the Tennessee river should not be lost.

OFFER PROVES VALUE

Secretary Hoover, commenting on Ford’s offer, said that “whatever may result from it, the offer proves what the public associations have contended—that the completion of this project has a commercial value.

Here are the principal points in Ford’s offer: (1) He will take a 100-year lease upon the Wilson dam and No. 3 dams and electric installation when completed. This work is estimated to cost $25,000,000. After a short preliminary period, Mr. Ford proposes to pay interest at the rate of 6 per cent on the sum of $25,000,000 and to amortize not only this sum but the entire cost of both dams over a period of 100 years. (2) He will purchase all the nitrate plant and equipment, lands, steam plant, etc., for $5,000,000. (3) He will convert and operate the large nitrate plant No. 2 for the production of fertilizer compounds and as a standby for government explosives in case of war, and keep it up to date in both arts. To Limit Profits. (4) He will limit the profits of the fertilizer plant to 8 per cent, an independent board embodying representatives of the American Farm Bureau, the National Grange and the Farmers’ Union to certify to this maximum. The completion of these works makes the Tennessee a navigable to Chattanooga, and there are undertakings by Ford for maintaining the locks, etc. The power developed will ultimately greatly exceed the requirements of the fertilizer plant, and Ford proposes to use it in his own business. In order to meet the annual payments proposed a very large use of power must be made outside the fertilizer works.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover stated that the acceptance of the offer was entirely for decision by the board of directors. He said that he was greatly guided by Secretary Weeks’ views in the matter. Mr. Ford has made a genuine proposal, it shows courage to agree to pay out $5,000,000 to spend further sums upon large works, and besides to take an annual obligation for about $1,500,000 for 100 years, and to agree to maintain a nitrate plant in reserve for the government for that period.

CLAY IS BOOMED AS NEXT GOVERNOR

Will Enter Race if Hardwick Is Not Candidate for Re-election, His Friends Declare.

HARDWICK AND STATE SOLONS ARE SPEAKERS

Speakers Predict Youthful Leader Will Follow in Footsteps of Illustrious Father.

BY MARION KENDRICK, Constitution Staff Correspondent.

Marionetta, Ga., July 14.—(Special.)—Should Governor Thomas W. Hardwick not be a candidate for re-election in 1925, Herbert Clay, president of the state senate will enter the campaign to succeed him, and should he be elected his next step up the political ladder will be to run for the United States senate, according to predictions made here this afternoon when Cobb county citizens paid tribute to the son of one of its most distinguished citizens.

Although Senator Clay did not reveal his political aspirations, other than to say that his chief ambition in life was to follow in the footsteps of his father, his close personal friends, Senators Dennis Fleming, of the tenth district, and Charles N. Bond, of the thirtieth, spoke of him as the next governor of Georgia, and it was generally understood that the occasion was the launching of his campaign, should Governor Hardwick not be a candidate.

Following the addresses of the two senators, the chief executive made an eloquent address on the accomplishments of the late Senator Clay, expressed his appreciation of the co-operation the present president of the senate has given him in his administration, and declared that it was his belief that “Herbert Clay will achieve the honors of his father.”

Senator B. P. Walker, chairman of the finance and appropriations committee and one of the leaders in the senate, followed the chief executive, presenting President Clay with a walking cane. On the gold handle the words, “To Herbert Clay: From the Senate of 1921-22,” were engraved.

Judge J. B. Roberts, of Marionetta, acted as toastmaster, and introduced Senator Fleming, who made the first address of the afternoon.

“For more than half the period of time the constitution exists the general assembly for an annual session, I have now had the good fortune to occupy a seat on the floor of the Georgia state senate,” he said. “Maybe it is because this session that the body of 1921-22 is an exceptionally strong and well-balanced one, or maybe it is because the environment, the surroundings, the atmosphere of statesmanship inspires it. But whatever the reason, my mind now and again reels in turning back to a recollection of my reading of earlier years, and to my mind’s eye there comes the vision of one who has been to be our colleague, our friend and our inspiration. I see it, but founded on what I have learned from a chapter of what, in part, is the most illustrious history ever written of Georgia.

There was with us all who occupy those seats when we sought of our constituency the honor they conferred upon us, an ambition to serve our people and our state and serve them well. In its inception we thought, perhaps, but of our own service in the capacity we now occupy, but when we had been passed that high compliment which gives to us the commissions we hold, and when we had gathered in Atlanta, when we began to make acquaintances among those who were to be our colleagues, our friends and later become our companions as well as associates, that ambition broadened and our mind began to form—those associations and the incident co-labor grew—the various conceptions of statesmanship figures.

Story of Abduction In Downtown Section Told by Young Girl

35 COUNTIES BACK GEORGIA HIGHWAY DEPARTMENTWORK

Representatives Declare for Continuance of Program and Take Stand Against New Bills.

ASK MONEY BE LEFT IN PRESENT PLACE

Inestimable Good Done By Department, Supporters Assert—Teaching Counties Road Building.

Declaring that the state highway commission is performing the greatest service ever done for Georgia and urging that the commission be left alone to continue in its good work, representatives of the county commissions of 35 Georgia counties appeared before a joint session of the house committees on highways and agriculture Thursday afternoon to oppose the bills pending in the house that propose to distribute the automobile tax money among the counties according to postroad mileage.

Five bills were before the committees. All propose to take the money derived from the sale of automobiles tax out of the hands of the state highway commission and distribute it between the counties according to post road mileage for the counties to use on their roads as they see fit.

Representatives of the following thirty-five counties stated that their counties were absolutely satisfied with the work of the commission: Adams, Appling, Baldwin, Bibb, Blount, Brantley, Butts, Calhoun, Camden, Charlton, Chatham, Clinch, Colquhoun, Coweta, Crisp, Cuthbert, De Kalb, Dodge, Douglas, Evans, Fayette, Floyd, Forsyth, Fulton, Gilmer, Glascock, Glynn, Habersham, Hancock, Hardee, Heard, Henry, Houston, Jasper, Jones, Keith, Lanier, Laurens, Lincoln, Long, Lowndes, McIntosh, Marion, Meriwether, Miller, Mitchell, Monroe, Montgomery, Morgan, Murray, Newton, Oconee, Oglethorpe, Oneida, Orange, Owsen, Paine, Palmetto, Pickens, Polk, Randolph, Rich, Richmond, Rockdale, Rowan, Russell, Ryan, St. James, St. John, St. Lawrence, St. Luke, St. Michael, St. Patrick, St. Peter, St. Vincent, Sumter, Talbot, Tallapoosa, Tallmadge, Tatums, Terrell, Thomas, Thosom, Tift, Turner, Twiggs, Union, Upson, Warren, Washington, Wilcox, Wilkes, Wilkerson, Winthrop, York.

BROWN TO INVOKE 1918 MONEY ACT

Senator Will Renew in Letter to Hardwick His Fight for Agriculture Department Probe.

Governor Thomas W. Hardwick will have presented to him this afternoon, a communication from Senator C. Brown in which alleged serious charges against the state agricultural department will be presented and an investigation asked under an act of 1918, which provides that all state branches shall be thoroughly examined before any appropriation is made by the general assembly.

In taking this step, Senator Brown asserted that he would continue his efforts in the senate to bring about an investigation. His resolution calling for an investigation is now in the hands of the agricultural committee, and the senator stated that his intentions were to force action within the next several days.

RAIL FREIGHT RATE CONFEREES TO ASK I. C. C. FOR HEARING

July 26 Set as Date for Pleas for Ex Parte Arguments on Tentative Schedule.

CONTENDING PARTIES BROUGHT TOGETHER

Meet Here Declared One of Most Momentous of Kind—Effects to Be Far-reaching.

Representatives of leading railroad lines in the southeastern territory and representatives of shippers served by these lines will appear before the interstate commerce commission July 26 to ask that body to set a date for an ex parte hearing of arguments touching on a tentative schedule of freight rates for this territory, it was announced Thursday following a three-day conference at which all details of the proposed schedule of rates were discussed and worked out.

The conference was one of the most important of its kind ever held in the south and the effects of the recommendations to be made by the interstate commerce commission following its ex parte hearing will be far-reaching. For years there has been a controversy between the railroad lines on the one hand and the shippers on the other hand relative to freight rates on Mississippi river crossing points, Virginia points, South Atlantic ports and eastern points to interior points and distributing centers in the southeastern territory.

The conference here was held to bring the contending parties together to discuss the problem of rates which is to be submitted to the interstate commerce commission for approval or revision. It was stated after the conference by Herbert E. Choates, former president of the Atlanta freight bureau, that as a result of the conference held in Atlanta many former barriers to a harmonious understanding of the situation were cleared away and that the shippers and railroad men will be able to appear before the interstate commerce commission with a clear mind.

RAILROADS CITED ON FREIGHT RATES

Every Line in Georgia Affected by Order to Show Cause to Stop Readjustments.

The state railroad commission at an executive session held Thursday issued an order citing all railroads in Georgia to appear before the commission on September 13 and show cause why certain discriminations in freight rates affecting 2,100 towns and cities in Georgia should not be re-adjusted. This order is a continuation of a fight for revision of the freight rates in question made by the commission a few weeks before the government during the war.

The commission cited the railroads to appear to show cause why the discrimination against the 2,100 towns and cities having a lower preferential rate should not be adjusted and proper relief granted the cities needing such relief.

This action followed introduction in the house Wednesday of a bill by Representative A. P. Brantley, of Pierce, in which the member of the house seeks to have the legislature pass a law equalizing freight rates in the state and eliminating alleged discriminations against a number of cities.

The commission also issued an order citing all railroads in Georgia to appear before the commission September 13 and show cause why the surcharge of fifty per cent on Pullman fare and parlor car fare should not be suspended. This question is one in which many traveling men are interested and much complaint has been made to the commission ever since it was first imposed.

LARSEN CHARGES PLAIN TO SQUEEZE FARMERS OF DIXIE

Georgia and Carolina Would Be Forced to Pay Huge Tax to North, He Says.

MEANS 50-CENT TAX PER ACRE FOR DIXIE

Nearly All Potash Used in Southern Fertilizers, Which Would Throw Tax on Farms.

BY CLARK HOWELL, JR., Constitution Bureau.

Washington, July 14.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Of tremendous importance to the farmers of the south is the provision in the Fordney tariff bill now pending in the house and set for a vote for July 21 which provides for the levying of a protective tariff of $50 per ton on imported potash. That such a tariff would affect the states of Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina more than all the rest of the country combined is revealed by the latest statistics showing that the consumption of fertilizer in these three states is greater than in all other states combined.

It was estimated before the tariff committee by Wilbur Laro, Jr., representing the United States Potash Producers’ association, that the adoption of the proposed tariff would bring into the treasury department ten millions of dollars annually but it remained for Judge W. W. Larsen, of the twelfth Georgia district, to call the attention of the house to the fact that the farmers of Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina would have to pay half of that amount.

In the territory east of the Mississippi river and north of the Ohio river the farmers use potash to a relatively small extent in the raising of potatoes and garden truck. Over 75 per cent of the potash used for agricultural purposes in this country is consumed in the southeast. This fertilizer material has been found to be almost indispensable in the raising of cotton on the southern coastal plain, where the soil is lacking in potash content. The experts say that if potash is not applied to the soil the cotton bolls do not fill out near the tops of the plant and that the fiber is much weaker than it is when potash is used. Similarly in truck raising where the soil lacks potash the addition of the potash to the soil makes the vegetable plants stronger, thus enabling the farmer to keep them longer without danger of loss from decay and to ship them to far distant markets.

It must be understood, of course, that potash constitutes only a small percentage of fertilizer, and that the amount of potash used per acre depends upon the requirement of the soil and the nature of the crop. The principal fertilizer used in the south is what is known as “2-8-2,” which contains 2 per cent of potash, or 40 pounds to the ton. So that if half a ton of fertilizer is used to the acre 20 pounds of pure potash would be used and the tariff imposed would be 50 cents, which would have to be paid on every acre of land in the south on which half a ton of fertilizer is used.

ask is $20,000 tons. The greatest amount ever produced by our American plants was somewhat over $9,000 tons, leaving 300,000 tons to be imported. A duty of $50 per ton would thus produce $15,000,000 in revenue.

That the framers of the tariff bill seemed to have deliberately proceeded with a view of making the southern farmers carry a large part of the burden—more than 75 per cent of it—is best shown by the following extract from Mr. LaRue's remarks before the tariff committee:

"There is sometimes a tendency in discussing this problem to assume that every farmer in the United States uses potash, and that a very large part of the fertilizer used consists of potash. Both of these assumptions are erroneous. The use of potash as a fertilizer is almost unknown west of the Mississippi river except in California. The western farmers, therefore, have little or no interest in this matter. It is a surprising fact that the great agricultural states of Illinois, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Colorado, Idaho, Utah, Montana, Washington and Oregon consumed in the aggregate in 1919 only 1.4 per cent of the country's total consumption of all fertilizer."

There can be no doubt where the tax will fall. To accentuate the dereliction which the burden is being placed almost entirely upon the south, it is worthy to note that approximately two-thirds of the total potash derived from the United States came from Nebraska, California and Utah, and with the exception of Virginia, the rest of it came from a cotton-growing state. Further accentuating the dereliction with which the republicans are leveling their tariff guns at the south is the outstanding fact that not a single cent of the tax has since 1898. Mr. LaRue admitted that a sufficient amount of potash for agricultural use was not derived from sources in the United States. The importation will have to remain at approximately 300,000 tons per year, should there be no decrease in the normal use of fertilizer.

Form of Tribute.
So the situation as pointed out by Judge Larsen and concurred in by other members of the tariff committee, is simply this: The farmers of the south will have to pay ten millions of dollars a year to cover the tariff on potash, which will result in the enrichment of the potash production companies, most of which are located in Nebraska, California and Utah, and which are capitalized at $25,000,000, according to statistics presented by Mr. LaRue before the tariff committee.

At the hearings before the tariff committee of the house, Judge Larsen, of the Georgia district, questioned Mr. LaRue closely on the proposed tariff on potash. He pointed out that the tariff was virtually proposing a taxation of fifty cents per acre on the cotton crop of the south. The tariff measure, he pointed out, was being controlled by the potash producers, and was a strong democratic minority report. attention upon which so much depends for the future of our race, because it matters not what treaties are signed, what pacts are entered into between nations, what understandings they may establish, it makes no difference what leagues or associations they may form; if nations arm against each other for war, war will ensue in the end. Therefore, no treaty is of value unless it leads to an understanding among nations that they will not utilize their resources, their wealth and their strength for the purpose of developing the mechanism of human slaughter against themselves. I am very hopeful that when that conference meets it will lead to something beyond mere resolutions in favor of disarmament, and will lead to an understanding and real arrangement, involving the keeping of these armaments with innocuous limits."

At the same dinner, Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, said he believed that a permanent settlement would be the ultimate result of the Irish conference.

SHARP FIGHTING IN BELFAST.—(By the Associated Press.)—A fierce gun duel was fought in the York street and North Queen streets areas tonight. Sniping, which began this morning, continued almost throughout the evening into sharp fighting in which the police and military were obliged to take cover at times.

At seven o'clock tonight the police and military were obliged to take cover at times. The fighting was so intense that the police and military were obliged to take cover at times.

Ambulance workers were kept busy taking wounded persons to hospitals. Among those wounded was William J. O'Connell, a member of the house of commons for North Belfast, who was shot in the chest.

That Henry Ford had offered through Secretary of Commerce Hoover a proposition for the utilization of Muscle Shoals for the purpose of producing nitrate fertilizer, a period of 100 years, members of congress from all sections of the country had been discussing the matter.

It will be recalled that during the last session of congress the democrats made every effort to have the government take over the plant and build a dam across the river.

The dam, the largest and best air nitrate plant in the world, is located at Muscle Shoals. It is about 100,000 feet long and 100 feet high.

FIGHT ON ICE PRICES IS BEGUN IN MACON

Macon, Ga., July 14.—(Special.)—That 40 cents per hundred pounds retail is too much for ice in the judgment of the city council here, and steps have been taken looking toward the reduction of the price. Macon ice manufacturers, it is stated, are receiving the same prices for ice now that they received during the war.

Manufacturers assert that they are paying as much in freight rates as a ton of coal formerly cost them and that Macon consumers are getting ice cheaper than people in some other Georgia cities. Ice retailed here for 30 cents a hundred pounds before the war.

ALL COTTON PAPER TO BE DISCOUNTED

Federal Reserve Banks Will Loan 80 Per Cent of Value on Cotton Stored Insured.

Columbia, S. C., July 14.—(Special.)—J. Skottowe Wannamaker, president of the American Cotton Association, has received a telegram from Congressman W. F. Stevenson of South Carolina, saying that the federal reserve board has instructed the Federal Reserve banks in the cotton states to discount all cotton paper presented by member banks when the paper is secured by sufficient cotton and that the board has authorized the banks to give out a public statement to this effect. Mr. Wannamaker issued the following statement today:

"Through special committees of the American Cotton Association the president of the United States, the secretary of the treasury, the governor of the federal reserve board and the comptroller of the currency were furnished with a complete synopsis of conditions in agricultural sections of the cotton belt and a special request was made that the federal reserve board announce that it would loan $100,000,000 on cotton stored and insured for 80 per cent of the market value, such loan to be made through member banks and non-member banks of the federal reserve system and to be renewed through 1921, or until market conditions become normal, it being pointed out that the federal reserve districts in the south could rediscount such paper with the other federal reserve districts.

Bankers Join in Request.

"Senators and congressmen of the south and west practically unitedly co-operated with and joined in this request and it was endorsed by thousands of bankers and business men throughout the agricultural sections.

"The national headquarters of the American Cotton Association was notified this afternoon that the request had been granted even in more liberal terms than anticipated. Instead of limiting the amount to $100,000,000, all cotton paper presented by member banks will be rediscounted for 80 per cent of the market value of the cotton through 1921 or until market conditions become normal.

"This means that 80 per cent of the market value can always be granted on cotton as special redemptions and that the banks can rediscount this paper with the Federal Reserve banks in the same way in which Liberty loan bonds were handled without being debarred on account of the amount of their credits.

Means Millions Saved.

"It also means the saving of millions to the farmers of the south as the same amount of cotton can be sold for less than one-third the cost of production they will be enabled to hold the same until confidence is restored and the markets opened.

"The American Cotton Association has just filed requests through congress and the crop reporting bureau of the department of agriculture that a special investigation be made as to the use of nitrate of soda, additional acreage abandoned since the last government report, ravages of the boll weevil and that the same be shown in the August government report. These conditions bring to light the certainty of even a shorter crop than indicated by the last government report. A campaign has already been started to increase acreage in food and feed crops this fall so as to assure an additional acreage reduction next year in the American cotton crop. Under this plan a reduction in cotton acreage next season in excess of reduction made this year is assured.

Lower Discount Rate Sought.

The American Cotton Association has just filed requests through congress and the crop reporting bureau of the department of agriculture for a lowering of the rediscount rate on bonds to 4 per cent and on agricultural and commercial paper to 4 1/2 per cent, it being necessary to extend more liberal credits for the re-establishment of confidence and to deflate interest so as to put it on a parity with the prices of the deflated commodities.

CLAY IS BOOMED AS NEXT GOVERNOR

backward in time as the mental processes revolved and became retrospective as well as prospective.

"Today more than at any time, as I sat in the senate chamber it seemed to me and for me that Georgia was once more living over that chapter of illustrious history written in the first of the early nineties. To my mental vision there came the figure of a stalwart, upstanding man of strong character, monumental will power and massive brain, a leader among men and one who made himself felt by his very presence. These same mental processes set me to studying him and in him I saw not only a great brain and a power of leadership, but withal a magnetism of affability, a personality truly lovable—an individual statesman whose heart beat strongest for his state and whose earnestness was forever for its people.

"He was a man whose loyalty to Georgia and Georgians, to his friends and to his friends' friends was synonymous with his name, and history tells us he was elevated from a previous post of legislative leadership to his present position as head of the Georgia state senate, where in my mind I saw him today. The same history tells us that his people were so responsive to his love, his loyalty and his worth that they declined to permit the completion of his career there, but again he was elevated by them because of his sterling ability, his earnestness of purpose, his scintillating brain, and most of all because of his almost matchless ability, and some five or six years later Georgia placed him as her statesman in the highest council of the nation.

Tribute to Clay.

"Today there came to my mind the vision I have drawn out of Georgia's history. It seemed to me I must for the moment be living through that period of the early nineties, for largely there was before me a fairly accurate counterpart of that man to whom history has but partly paid full tribute. I could see him standing upright, firm-featured, earnestly directing the course of the state senate, the same lovable, the same loyal, the same true-hearted President Clay.

"The destiny of fate, in directing our courses in private and political life, perchance has grooved itself anew in an old channel. For it is not the same figure history has perpetuated for Georgia, however near it may be a counterpart. Today is not the day of the early nineties, but it is the beginning of the dawn of a new era for this great commonwealth. Like the other day, it, too, is going to make history, for the state, and the best hope from all of us is the history we will make will square with that of its predecessor years. It may be that the decree of fate has taken up a lovable, a capable heritage which the illustrious Steve Clay left to Georgia, and through him as great or maybe a greater destiny is yet to be worked out for our people and our state.

"I ask you, my friends and associates, to join me in this toast: 'To you, our hero, may the destiny decreed by fate be that the son of that illustrious Georgian is today but entering a reproduction of the career of that beloved statesman of covered memory; may the course of the next six years be repeated in today's history as it was in that of the early nineties."

Senator Bond, of the thirtieth, followed Mr. Fleming, and in his short address he informed Mrs. Clay that he had been commissioned by the senate to notify her that she could no longer lay exclusive right to her husband, since he was president of the senate and a future governor of the state.

Bond's Speech.

"Since Susan B. Anthony and Mary Pickford have encroached upon the inherent monopoly of men to vote, I can conceive of no greater form of retaliation than for men to love to absorb woman's prerogative to gossip," he asserted.

"I'm going to tell you a secret: take you right into the bosom of my confidence, but I'm not going to ask you to keep it a secret. You can go right ahead and encroach on that female prerogative, as I am doing, and the secret along."

"Now, here's the secret, and I am going to ask you all to join me in turning my expression of our sentiment into this toast:

Addresses Mrs. Clay.

"Mrs. President, I address this part of my remarks to you. The Georgia senate may not know it, but it has commissioned me to notify you that henceforth you can no longer lay claim to the exclusive right to love 'Our Herbert,' for you have contributed largely in making possible a great demonstration of the fact that we, too, love him. To us he is more than friend, companion and good fellow; he is a great brain, a great heart, a great leader, and now I ask all my colleagues and friends to join me in this toast: 'To you, Mrs. President, who are destined to write the second time the name Clay on the pages of Georgia history from his place, that it shall once more be quoted as a guiding mark and an inspiration for another generation. Gentlemen, I propose a toast to a future governor of Georgia and a coming United States senator—the Hon. Herbert Clay, beloved son of the illustrious Steve Clay and citizen of Cobb county, Georgia.'

Humorous Address.

The most humorous speech of the occasion was made by Roland Ellis, of Macon, who told of his experiences in introducing the present governor when he was less popular than now. He declared that some of the best people are now taking Mr. Hardwick into their homes, and it is rumored that the bon-ton of David Hill is planning to admit him.

"Here's Herbert Clay, who is going to run for every office, and there's Tom Hardwick, who is going to reform all the laws," said Mr. Ellis. "Well, they're a hard task and may they succeed, for they are really worthy of great achievements."

Among the others who made speeches during the afternoon were Joe C. Foster of Marietta, and Judge Roberts, ex-Governor Joseph M. Brown and Nat Harris were present and were frequently referred to by the speakers.

Major Devereaux F. McClatchey, secretary of the senate, was faithful to his duties and accompanied all the senators to the country club, never relinquishing the reins of his office, until someone late in the evening remarked: "Through with the resolution."

ON ACCEPTS DISARMING PLAN

The Japanese Reply to Hughes Note Received in Washington—China Also "Unqualifiedly Accepts."

BY ROBERT J. WENDER.
United News Staff Correspondent.
Washington, July 14.—It may be stated now for the first time that the American government regards the international conference on armament limitation and disarmament as a definite certainty.
It is officially declared that negotiations already under way to determine the day of calling the conference will be hastened. Now that word from Japan has been received, it is the state department, and that, as soon as a date has been agreed upon, the formal invitation to the interested powers. These invitations may include Holland and Belgium, both of which nations have interests in the Pacific.
There is some little mystery as to the scope of the Japanese reply, expressed the sentiment that Japan would be pleased to receive a proposed formal invitation to a disarmament conference. It neither affirmed nor denied her willingness to participate in a conference on Far Eastern questions.

Unqualified acceptance by the Chinese government also was received.
There is reason to believe, however, that Japan merely desires to consider the second phase of the proposition further and, pending such consideration, wished to delay no longer her support of the disarmament conference. Officials indicated that they were possessed of knowledge of the "slightest doubt" about Japan's position. One official stated the situation authoritatively as follows:
"The conference may now be considered as definitely fixed as Washington. The time for holding it will be decided as soon as possible. Then the formal invitations will be issued."

Japanese Situation.
The Japanese note regarded here as reflecting the influence of political conditions in that country, first indicated that Japan's position from Tokio stated that in publishing Hughes proposal for a conference, Japanese newspapers mentioned only the disarmament phase and eliminated reference to discussion of far eastern problems. Japan's stake in this phase of the discussion is quite obviously greater than that of any other nation involved, because she may well regard herself as likely to be called on to yield more than any other country. Even so, however, it is contended, she would profit more than the world loss, in the long run, by coming into such a world settlement designed to better international relations rather than staying out and losing the confidence and co-operation she otherwise would command from the United States, England, France, Italy, China and other great powers interested in the forthcoming project.
The interest of the world, was strikingly illustrated in diplomatic day Thursday at the state department. One after another of the foreign governments called on Secretary Hughes to commend the movement started for better international relations and less armament.

Women Start Work.
Organized women of the country, upon assurance of the conference being held, have begun a campaign to have "a just representation of women" on the American commission.
The women's committee for world disarmament, after a meeting here Thursday, requested that an appointment be made for its representatives at the white house soon when the president will be urged to grant this recognition of those who "bear the brunt of war and are disassociated from any special interests in the promotion of war and the profits which accrue from war."
The women's committee, of which Miss Emma Wild, noted suffrage worker, is chairman, sent Harding a copy of the resolution passed in its meeting Thursday, expressing profound appreciation of the president's "momentous action in summoning the conference which offers opportunity to revise the world's unendurable tax burdens imposed by the rivalry of armaments and to rescue civilization from future war."

U. S. RESERVE BOARD SCORED BY WILLIAMS

ing operations, he said, was cruel cramping of banks, small merchants and farmers in the country and actual stimulation of wild speculation and destructive activity in New York. He stated his belief that the uneasiness and weakness in the stock market are, in large part, to distrust and loss of confidence in men at the head of some of our big financial institutions and fear of the results of trouble to them and apprehension as to the consequences of the association of their officers with various speculative schemes. He considers the troubles are capacity is largely caused by the rule of being readily remedied. The general knowledge in inside circles of the ventures in which certain individuals and cliques have been involved, encouraged and assisted by the unusual and injudicious liberality to them and their interests of the New York Federal Reserve bank and the case with which they could command cash by borrowing, is now admitted, with a "reckless prodigality." Among instances in support of his position on this matter he gave these:
"It seemed to me the policy of the federal reserve board, and of some of the reserve banks, if certain big banks wanted anything, they let them have it, and no questions asked; but if a little bank or a farmer needed funds, he was well made; him give up everything he has as security and make the directors as well guarantee the loans for all they are worth. This policy has been carried so far that I was informed recently of a national bank which claims it was not saved, but was broken by the exactions of a reserve bank, and its directors are now arranging to bring suit against the Federal Reserve bank, demanding that it pay depositors in full."
The prodigality with which certain big banks disposed of the funds so unsifted by some reserve banks is illustrated by a loan of $500,000 to the Georgia company made by a big northern bank which came to my notice. When I inquired what the security for the loan was, I was informed that the collateral was fish, and when I asked where the fish were, I was officially informed that the fish had not been caught at the time the loan was made, but that they were supposed to be swimming in the Pacific or the Arctic ocean, but that the corporation had promised to go fishing, and if fish were caught they would be packed and canned and put in warehouses and the warehouse receipts deposited as security for the loan, which, when I last heard from them, had not been paid or reduced."
"Much of the money loaned in the big cities was used for the legitimate purposes of trade and commerce, but entirely too large a part of it was used for the promotion of all kinds of speculative schemes and ventures and many millions of money borrowed from the New York Reserve bank were employed by the borrowing banks to promote speculative schemes of the executive officers of prominent banking institutions in that city to whom in various cases, commonly spoken of as "family" rates, were charged. In other cases banks which were borrowing from the Federal Reserve bank at 6 per cent took advantage of the necessities of their customers, and in some instances, charged them 20, 30 and 50 per cent per annum on good security.

Extraneous Interest.
Mr. Williams demonstrated that the lower thirty-three times the rate it paid the Reserve bank for the accommodation. He said, however, that the period of the fancy, spectacular, dissolute and grinding bankers is nearly over.

On this subject he observed:
"The theory that the best executives are speculators and promoters on the one hand or expert publicity men and 'boosters,' whose main functions are to prepare press statements or attend bankers' conventions and maneuver the appointments of committees and steer through resolutions, has received a rude setback during this year, and the importance of having men of the highest integrity, ripe experience and sound views on both the ethics and assurance of banking is being more thoroughly than ever before in our history."
"I have no hesitation in telling you that so far as I am able to see, the decent and conservative element in New York city, as everywhere else, regards just as I do, the operations and methods of the big speculators who have made piles of money by the use of people and the performance of accidents and some of some of the most unscrupulous and powerful entrusted to them to defy morality and flout decency. When the stockholders are asked how their confidence has been abused there will be radical changes in some of our banks."

As the result of seven years experience in supervising our national banks and commercial conditions, Mr. Williams is confidently optimistic about the future, but he insists that mismanagement of the federal reserve bank has been instrumental in postponing and in denying us now the stable and sound financial conditions which incited the workman to squander wages on silk shirts and the farmer to buy expensive automobiles drove the financier and business man to investment in speculation. He reviewed conditions in Europe when peace followed two decades of war and the continent of Europe, which in the early years of the eighteenth century rushed into an era of financial speculation culminating in the South Sea bubble and general crash and ruin. A century later, after the Napoleonic war and our war of 1812, with Great Britain, the American people went through a similar period of speculation, regardless of prudence, speculation in everything and brought up in 1821, when the great depression of 1821, when the sale of real estate for unpaid mortgages and overvalued stocks and bonds in New York and Philadelphia. After our civil war eight years of depression and improvident enterprise ended with the panic of 1873. We have had the usual post war fever and recovery, but with the federal reserve system properly used, we would have escaped entirely much of the misfortune and many of the miseries millions of us have had to endure.

Wants Public Aroused.
Having failed in his earnest and persistent efforts to secure action which might have averted or eased the calamity which has come, he said, he is putting the case before the public to arouse attention to defects in administration of the federal reserve system and so make sure that hereafter it shall function adequately. His understanding of the proper course is that the board apply stoutly and impartially and with some elasticity of method. Making further revelations of the inside workings of the board of governors, Mr. Williams said:
"In discussions in board meetings in which I sought to urge reforms which I thought vital and urgent for the welfare of the people, committed to the board, I was met with indifference and disconcerting replies were elicited. When I remarked that serious failures might result unless a certain course of action was taken, one member remarked, with cynicism and heartlessness which I was unable to comprehend, 'let them fail.' Since then the same idea actually has been published in newspapers as a suggestion discussed by an important official of a certain prominent federal reserve bank."
The former controller took occasion to pay tribute to the farmer as a bank customer, remarking:
"In the early days of my administration as controller of the currency I took some pains to determine what the experience of the national banks had been in the matter of loans to farmers. I know it will be gratifying to you to know that the managers of hundreds of country banks stated to me that the eventual losses on their loans to farmers had been impressively small, a mere fraction of 1 per cent of their aggregate loans, and that although the farmer is not always prompt in meeting his notes at maturity, the farmers' loans are about the safest and best the banks can make."
Mr. Williams carefully disclaimed political bias or purpose in his criticisms. The members of the board standing for its deflation policy which the opposed included, he claims, equal numbers of adherents of the two parties. He believes that, in addition to other faults, it has permitted, if it has not encouraged, needless extravagance in the conduct of the system. He gave instances of this, thus:
"Perhaps there may be reasons why four officers of one reserve bank are allowed to draw salaries exceeding the aggregate salaries paid the president, the vice president and the chief justice of the supreme court of the United States and General Pershing, commander-in-chief of our army, or why one officer of a reserve bank is given a salary while off duty and on vacation exceeding the salary of three United States senators for the same time."
The high-priced officials, he says, have expensive tastes and he called attention to the plan filed on Thursday last for what he refers to as a temple of banking in New York city estimated to cost $10,000,000, and which he says is probably more than the combined cost of the white house, the treasury building at Washington and the state capitol of a dozen states of the union.

STORY OF ABDUCTION TOLD BY YOUNG GIRL.

then grows hazy. Terror had deprived her almost of the ability to think. She says that she knows the car went a great distance, between fifteen and twenty miles, finally in a secluded spot, she was forcibly compelled to alight from the car and was taken in some heavy woods, she believes somewhere in the neighborhood of the Chattahoochee river.
There the men held her captive until late in the night when she was deserted. She had no sense of direction and was compelled to wait for daylight before beginning her sad pilgrimage back to Atlanta.

Found Railroad Station.
She finally found a railroad station and took the first train for Atlanta. She doesn't even know what road she returned on, but thinks that it was the Southern. She arrived at the Terminal station. She went to a nearby hotel, she says, in order to get some rest and try to think up her problems. She goes to a room in the hotel and tried to sleep. Her brain was tortured with the thought, however, that she could never return home. Her parents, she believed, would never understand her disappearance. Her plan was to go out the following morning, obtain work and leave Atlanta as soon as possible.

At the hotel she encountered a new danger. She declared that a man offered her any insult but that several girls in the hotel obtained cases banks which were borrowing from the Federal Reserve bank at 6 per cent took advantage of the necessities of their customers, and in some instances, charged them 20, 30 and 50 per cent per annum on good security.

Goes to Another Hotel.
The next day she moved to another hotel in the same neighborhood, but later she returned to the first hotel. Throughout each day she vainly sought for work and Wednesday afternoon was preparing to return to her hotel when she thought she recognized an acquaintance in the American Auto and Radiator Repair works at 34 West Hunter street.

She had determined to ask his advice. Although she soon recognized that the man she thought her friend was another person, the evident sympathy, the willingness of the three men in the shop to help her in her plight won her confidence and she consented to be taken to a boarding house to be cared for until the following morning when she was assured that some provision would be made for her future. In the morning, Mr. Dempsey had informed her of her mother's condition and with assurance of nothing but parental joy in her homecoming, she agreed to return.

Convicted of Theft.
At the Brighwell home, John Simonton, an Atlanta attorney, who inaugurated the search for the girl, gave out the following information: "Vera's parents are convinced that she is being held by the kidnappers. Of course they are heartbroken, but I know from her past life and from the use of her character, that she is and always will be a good girl. She has been victimized by circumstances and the lowest of criminals, but we all have faith that she will have the strength to go through her Gethsemane."

Detectives were immediately assigned to the case as soon as the girl's story was told and Thursday afternoon they made a round of the downtown hotels where she says she stopped. It was declared at detective headquarters that arrests were expected in a few hours.

ever, she approached Tom, but on seeing that he had made a mistake and didn't know him, she started to leave.

"I could see that the child was frightened about something and that her clothes were dirty and bedraggled and she was generally miserable. Naturally, I felt sorry for her—she looked so young and pitiful—so I asked her what was the matter and where she was going."

Impressed With Innocence.
She told me that she was going to a hotel around the corner. I was impressed with her innocence, so I told her not to do that—that the place wasn't safe for a young girl. Then she asked me what I thought she ought to do, telling me that she was running away from home and had gone to that hotel because it was near the railroad station. She had been in a situation and finally drew out of her the whole wretched story.

"Now I want to stress this. I have absolute confidence that this girl is telling the truth. If she had been a bad girl, I don't believe she could have fooled me like that. The stuff that's been printed that she was in a dazed or drugged condition when she came in here is all bosh. She told a straight story and told it so that I believed it and so did my partners. She gave me her real name, too."

Found Boarding Place.
"Her story made me pity her so that I was determined to get her a good, safe place to rest during the night, and the next morning I had determined to get busy and find her parents."

"Tom Milam used to board with a lady on Courtland street, a lady in whose respectability, Christianity and charity we all had unlimited confidence."

"We took the little girl around there, told her story and were assured that she would be given fine treatment, and that no one would be allowed to take her away without our first being notified. I told my wife of the occurrence as soon as I reached home."

"This morning the first thing I saw in the Constitution was the story of the missing girl and I went to the boarding house, but had an awful hard time convincing the lady on Courtland street, a lady in whose respectability, Christianity and charity we all had unlimited confidence."

"I had a hard time, explaining, too, that I was the man who had led her off and was getting ready to shoot me. I had a hard time, explaining, too, that I was the man who had led her off and was getting ready to shoot me."

Given Clean Clothes.
"She had on the same soiled clothing that she wore when she entered our shop. I took her to my home and got my wife to fix her up in some clean things and then drove her out to my home."

"Add the worst of it came then. When I arrived with her, the father jumped at me, thinking I was the man who had led her off and was getting ready to shoot me. I had a hard time, explaining, too, that I was the man who had led her off and was getting ready to shoot me."

BAKER ENTERS SIXTH WARD COUNCIL RACE

Dr. L. P. Baker, of the sixth ward, will run for alderman from that ward in the approaching primary in opposition to Alvin Richards, who, with J. R. Nutting, is an incumbent, according to announcement made Thursday.

A committee of sixth ward citizens called on Dr. Baker Thursday night and he has consented to make the race. The large group of citizens who have pledged their support to Dr. Baker are organizing their forces for the campaign and W. W. Waites has consented to act as campaign manager. Dr. Baker's residence is at 168 West North avenue.

ALLEGED BANDITS IN BANK HOLD-UP FACE COURT TODAY

Three men charged with the sensational daylight robbery of the Bank of College Park recently will be arraigned in the Fulton superior court Friday. The men are Charles Hayes, J. R. Brooks and Joan West and all three will enter pleas of guilty, according to Deputy Sheriff J. D. Basmore, who assisted in capturing them. The cases were set for Thursday but the state was not ready to have the case heard.

The three men held up Cashier W. C. Youmans, of the College Park institution, and obtained $15 in pennies. They overlooked several thousand dollars in a drawer in the cashier's cage.

Another case of interest to citizens of College Park will come up for hearing Friday in the superior court. It is the intervention of Dr. J. J. Foster against the validation of $100,000 of Georgia improvement bonds. Dr. Foster will be represented by Judge Garland L. Williams and Attorney George W. Conner will represent the city of College Park.

VICTIM OF AUTO WRECK MAY DIE

Reports from the Grady hospital Thursday evening indicated that the condition of John Torrance, twenty-two years old, a recent graduate of the University of Georgia, who was fatally hurt in an automobile accident on the Peachtree road about 2 o'clock Thursday morning changed little during the day.

The car in which Torrance was riding was struck by a car going in the same direction, according to witnesses. The wheels of the two cars became interlocked and Torrance's car, which was being driven by Milton Riley, 23, of the Chestnutfield apartments, swerved to the side and crashed into a telephone pole.

The third occupant of the wrecked car was J. D. Norris, 31, son of the candy manufacturer, who escaped with slight bruises.

The party had been to the Japanese tea room on Peachtree road, according to a story told the police by the young men, and they were returning to the city when the accident occurred.

"The car was too close to us," said Riley. "The rear right wheel of the other car tore off the left wheel of ours, and it went smashing against a post on the side of the road. Riley received a cut on the forehead and bodily injuries."

Riley's car was practically demolished. Another automobile accident causing minor injuries occurred on the Greens Ferry road about 6 o'clock Thursday morning.

"CANNOT AFFORD TO GROW OLD"

A prominent Atlanta citizen says: "no one can afford to grow old—to become decrepit, weak or even tired out, when it is so much a matter of mental attitude—and when it is possible to stimulate the reproduction of new cells in the numerous tissues of the body and to keep the rate of reproduction equal to the exhaustion and decay of these cells."

That's really what GROWTH and DEVELOPMENT is—and continued growth and development of the vital organs of the body means prolonged vigorous manhood and womanhood.

Nervousness, fear, worry and depression, loss of appetite, loss of energy, all tend to dangerously retard the activity of the little cells that comprise the vital organs of the body. Continued physical effort in hot weather tends to bring on this dangerous depression. REGENERATOR is essentially a hot weather tonic and cell stimulant. A table-spoonful every morning will generate pep, energy and enthusiasm and subdue the depressing effects of excessive hot weather.

Regenerator is new—it is more than a medicine—just one minute night and morning and it will make you feel as young as you ever did. All druggists carry Regenerator.

These Are "Easterling" FURS

THE other day, having nothing better to do, and abhorring idleness more than nature abhors a vacuum, we began a search for the origin for the word "sterling."

IT seems that in early Anglo-Saxon civilization there was considerable trading between the British and the inhabitants across the North Sea in the land known as Jutland—now Denmark.

THESE men of Jutland were called "Easterlings" from the fact that their land lay east of England. They were astute business men, fair, four-square and honorable, and their goods were always of unimpeachable quality. This reputation for character and integrity among the Easterlings ultimately became legendary, and in the slow process of time the name was contracted into "Sterling," synonymous with character and integrity, finally being adopted for the English standard coin, the Pound Sterling.

IN referring to the Furs in the Rich Summer Sale as Easterling, or Sterling Furs, we do so with the idea of emphasizing the fact that they are genuine, real and of unimpeachable character—more than ninety-nine one-hundredths fine!

THEY were selected by experts from fresh, first quality pelts, from the best furriers of the world. They are sound and reliable.

AS to the fashions, simply gorgeous—not to be resisted! Indeed, is not the allure of such Furs elemental, and therefore practically irresistible?

THE Savings in the Summer Sale range from 25% to 45% on today's prices on present replacement costs. It is important to know that these Savings will be withdrawn August first Important!

We are making it as easy as possible for you to buy and to enjoy the savings of the Summer Sale of Furs. PANEL 1: A fisherman stands on the left, holding a large codfish aloft. He says to a customer sitting at a counter: "HEY OLD TIMER- WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THAT?"

PANEL 2: The customer replies from behind the counter: "THAT'S NICE- THAT'S NOT A BAD FISH- PRETTY GOOD FOR YOU- MIGHTY GOOD FOR A TENDERFOOT- WHERE DID YOU GET HIM? WAS HE SLEEPING ON THE BANK?"

PANEL 3: The fisherman responds: "HE MUST HAVE BEEN HIDING IN YOUR BOAT- YOU KEEP ON FOR A COUPLE OF YEARS AND YOU'LL BE ABLE TO GET ONE THAT'S BIG ENOUGH TO HIDE YOUR HOOK-"

PANEL 4: The scene shifts to a different part of the shop. A man with a beard and hat sits on a stool, leaning back. A small boy stands before him. The man says: "WELL THAT'S LUCK- FISHERMAN'S LUCK- YOU'VE GOT NO SCIENCE- YOU JUST THROW YOUR HOOK OUT- YOU DON'T KNOW WHERE IT'S GOING- YOU'RE LIABLE TO GET A FISH ONCE IN A WHILE- GRAB SOME DISSIPATED FISH ON HIS WAY HOME SOME MORNING AFTER A BAD NIGHT- WHY SPEND ALL THIS RAILROAD FARE BOARD AND EVERYTHING- FOR HALF THAT DOUGH SOME GUY WOULD LET YOU SIT IN A FISH STORE AND THROW YOUR LINE IN THE SNOW WINDOW-"
